In Sweden we are 18 bureaus (2023) which work together against discrimination. We are all funded by the Swedish Agency for Youth and Civil Society (MUCF), through a regulation for governmental support to organisations “preventing and counteracting discrimination” (2002:989). This regulates the activities of the antidiscrimination bureaus.

The bureaus can be run by various non-profit organisations, but the operation of the different bureaus is the same, regardless of the principal organisation. Sensus Svealand is the principal organisation of Rättighetscentrum Dalarna.

RÄTTIGHETS = CENTRUM DALARNA

FOR HUMAN RIGHTS - AGAINST DISCRIMINATION

RÄTTIGHETSCENTRUM DALARNA

We are the anti-discrimination bureau of Dalarna and have been operational since 2015. Our mission is directed by a state regulation (2002: 989) that prevents and counteracts discrimination. We receive funding from The Swedish Agency for Youth and Civil Society (MUCF) and work closely with The Equality Ombudsman (DO).

Our work includes:

- Free legal advice and supportive efforts for people who have been discriminated against.
- Preventative measures aimed to raise awareness and spread knowledge through education, lectures and seminars.
- Efforts to create public opinion by writing debate articles and arranging activities for the public, preferably in cooperation with others.

Have you been discriminated against?

A simplified description of discrimination under the Swedish law is that someone is treated unfavorably or when a person's dignity is violated. The disfavoured treatment or violation of the person's dignity must have a connection to one of the seven grounds of discrimination.

You can always contact us for counselling or support if you feel that you have been discriminated against. If it turns out that you have been subject to discrimination by law, we can assist with your complaint - Either through mediation or help you make a formal complaint.

Pledge of confidentiality

At Rättighetscentrum Dalarna, we have a pledge of confidentiality. This means that if you turn to us for support or need help exercising your rights, then you can feel safe in the fact that we do not pass on any information without your approval.
